

Resource: Family Child Care Needs Assessment

As you continue to explore opening a family child care business, take the time to do a complete and thorough needs assessment. This is a critical step in determining whether your community needs your services. One of the reasons that business owners of all types fail is because they have not considered the needs of their consumers.

There are three parts to the Needs Assessment. First, you need to have data on what type of child care currently is being offered in your community. Second, you will want to understand more about families that you might serve through your family child care business. Finally, you will want to know what other providers in your area charge for child care. This will help you build your budget.

You may need help completing your needs assessment. Your local Child Care Resource and Referral agency (CCR&R) will be able to help you with much of this information. Your first step will be to learn which CCR&R agency serves your area.

Many of the questions in this resource can be answered by your local CCR&R. Have this checklist handy when you contact them and fill in answers or comments as you speak with a representative.

Part 1: Current Child Care Landscape

Question	Answer/Comment
Who else is providing child care in your area? Ask your local Child Care Resource and Referral (CCR&R) agency about the number of providers in your area.	Number of family child care homes:
Who are your main competitors? In the geographic area of where you want to open your business, who provides child care services? Think about churches, local YMCAs, and schools as well as traditional child care providers.
Is there a child care need for a specific age group? Think about the current providers in the area and what age groups they are serving. Ask your local Child Care Resource and Referral agency if there is a need for infant/toddler care or other age groups.	Infants (birth-12 months): Toddlers (1-2 years): Preschool (3 years): Pre-K (4-5 years old): Before/after care for school-age children:
Is there a need for child care during a specific time of the day? Think about whether you might provide care during non- traditional hours, before/after school care to school-age children, or children enrolled in part-time pre-k programs.
Is the need for child care in your area likely to change in the next 5-10 years? Why? Think about whether there are local companies that are expanding or closing, whether your local schools may be providing child care services, or other factors that could influence the need.

Part 2: Family Demographics

Question	Answer/Comment
How many families with young children live in your area? Consider families with children birth-5 years, as well as families with school-age children if you want to serve that age group.
How many of the families with young children in your area will need child care?
Ask your local Child Care Resource and Referral agency for current statistics on the number of families that may need care.
Where do local parents work? What are typical working hours?
Think about the parents that might use your program. Some businesses, such as hospitals, factories, emergency services, etc., are open in non-traditional hours. Or, some parents may work for organizations that have more typical work hours. You will want to think about parent needs in designing your program.
How long is the typical commute?
Do parents live in suburban areas and commute to a more urban area for work? Are you in a rural area where commute times may be longer? You will need to think about these things as you think about your hours of operation.
